Donald Trump said a deal with Iran was “all signed” and that the Strait of Hormuz would be “completely open” by Friday, when a signing ceremony is expected in Geneva. An American official said the waterway would operate without tolls for 60 days. Negotiations over a final agreement about Iran’s nuclear programme will continue. Mr Trump said sanctions may take effect if Iran does “what they’re supposed to do”.

Several world leaders welcomed the truce between Iran and America. Iran claimed it would also end Israel’s war with Hizbullah in Lebanon. Mr Trump said he planned to “straighten out” the conflict and that he would talk to the Iran-backed militia. Binyamin Netanyahu, Israel’s prime minister, said his country would remain in a “security buffer zone” in Lebanon for “as long as necessary”.

Markets in Europe and America hit fresh highs following news of the deal. The benchmark s&p 600 index jumped by around 1.7%; the tech-heavy Nasdaq extended its rally caused by rocketing SpaceX stocks following the firm’s IPO last week. Earlier, the Stoxx 600 index of European firms hit an all-time record on opening and Asian markets swelled. Airline stocks took off as global oil prices dropped.

Fox struck a $22bn deal to buy Roku, a streaming service with more than 100m users. The cable-TV giant wants to create a “next-generation media and technology company” for its news and sport content as more viewers move online. The cash-and-stock deal is Fox’s first big takeover since Lachlan Murdoch took over from his father, Rupert, as CEO and Chairman last year.

Russia killed at least 11 people in Ukraine, including five rescue workers in a strike on the city of Kharkiv. Its missile and drone attacks significantly damaged the 11th-century Dormition Cathedral, which is part of a UNESCO-listed Pechersk Lavra monastery in Kyiv, the capital. France's foreign ministry likened the attack to a bombing of the Notre Dame cathedral in Paris; Russia denied hitting the church.

Britain will ban social media for under-16s. At a press conference announcing the move, Sir Keir Starmer, the prime minister, said he hoped to pass the regulation by Christmas and have it in effect by spring 2027. Sir Keir said he was “not prepared to compromise on the safety and happiness of our children”. The case for such bans is weak.

Starbucks Korea will shut its coffee shops early next week so staff can attend a history training session following a botched marketing campaign that sparked a mass boycott. South Koreans soured on the company when it invoked “Tank Day” close to the anniversary of the 1980 Gwangju massacre, when troops killed pro-democracy demonstrators, to sell its tumblers; the firm's chief executive was fired.

Figure of the day: 13.2 months. The median survival times for patients with pancreatic cancer who tried a new drug—double what it is now. Read about the medical breakthrough.
